

WEBSITE DISCLAIMER

Effective Date: July 10, 2026

1. General Information Only

The content available through www.dynamic-reflections.com is provided for general educational and informational purposes.

Although Dynamic Reflections strives to offer thoughtful and accurate information, website content is not individualized professional advice and should not be used as a substitute for psychotherapy, psychological assessment, medical care, psychiatric treatment, legal counsel, financial guidance, or another professional service.

2. No Therapist-Client or Other Professional Relationship

Accessing the website, reading a blog post, downloading a resource, submitting a form, sending an email, leaving a voicemail, or scheduling an initial consultation does not create a therapist-client, psychologist-client, coach-client, consultant-client, or other professional relationship.

A clinical relationship begins only after Dynamic Reflections accepts the person as a client and the required intake and informed-consent process has been completed.

Coaching and consulting relationships require a separate agreement describing the scope of services.

3. Not a Crisis Service

This website and its communication channels are not designed for emergency or crisis response and may not be monitored outside normal business operations.

If you are in immediate danger, feel unable to remain safe, or believe you may harm yourself or another person:

- Call 911 or your local emergency number;
- Go to the nearest emergency department; or
- In the United States, call or text 988.

Do not use the website contact form for urgent or emergency communication.

4. Clinical and Diagnostic Information

Descriptions of symptoms, diagnoses, treatments, psychological tests, therapeutic approaches, and mental health conditions are general in nature.

They do not establish that:

- You have or do not have a particular condition;
- A particular treatment is appropriate for you;
- A specific evaluation or test is necessary;
- Dynamic Reflections will reach a particular diagnosis;
- Medication is or is not appropriate;
- An insurer will cover services; or
- A school, employer, court, licensing agency, or other organization will accept a recommendation.

Only an appropriately qualified professional who has conducted an individualized evaluation can provide clinical recommendations.

5. Psychological Assessment Disclaimer

Psychological assessment findings depend on the referral question, available records, testing conditions, effort, validity indicators, clinical history, collateral information, and professional judgment.

No website statement guarantees a particular diagnosis, accommodation, benefit, school service, legal outcome, workplace decision, disability determination, medication decision, or third-party acceptance of an evaluation.

Dynamic Reflections is not responsible for how an independent third party interprets or uses assessment results.

6. Telehealth Disclaimer

Telehealth may not be suitable for every person, concern, or situation. Availability depends on the client's physical location, clinician authorization, technology, privacy, emergency planning, and clinical judgment.

The fact that this website can be accessed from a location does not mean Dynamic Reflections may provide clinical services there.

7. Coaching and Consulting Disclaimer

Leadership coaching, career-focused services, conflict resolution, and organizational consultation are not psychotherapy or medical treatment unless expressly identified and contracted as clinical services.

These services do not guarantee employment, promotion, improved revenue, organizational transformation, employee retention, conflict resolution, leadership success, regulatory compliance, or another specific outcome.

Organizational recommendations depend on the scope of available information and do not replace legal, human-resources, financial, cybersecurity, regulatory, or medical advice.

8. Blog Posts and Resources

Blog posts, worksheets, videos, downloads, and educational materials may discuss broad psychological or organizational concepts. They are not designed to address every circumstance or account for every individual difference.

You are responsible for deciding whether and how to use general educational materials. Stop using a resource and seek qualified support if it causes distress, appears unsuitable, or raises safety concerns.

9. No Guarantee of Accuracy or Results

Dynamic Reflections endeavors to keep website information useful and current but does not guarantee that every statement is complete, error-free, current, or applicable to your circumstances.

Mental health care, assessment, relationships, careers, leadership, and organizational change are complex. Results vary, and no particular outcome is promised.

10. External Resources

Links to external websites, research, organizations, products, services, directories, or other resources are provided for convenience and education.

Dynamic Reflections does not control those resources and does not guarantee their accuracy, safety, accessibility, availability, or privacy practices. Inclusion of a link does not necessarily constitute endorsement.

11. Professional Credentials and Scope

Professional titles, licensure, certifications, and areas of practice described on the website apply to the particular clinician identified.

Not every clinician provides every service, works with every age group, accepts every insurance plan, or practices in every jurisdiction. Visitors should confirm current availability and scope before relying on website descriptions.

12. Use at Your Own Discretion

Your use of this website and reliance on its general content are at your own discretion.

Nothing in this Disclaimer limits any responsibility that Dynamic Reflections cannot legally exclude or limits any rights available under applicable law.
